

As Is

As thin as ice has ever been,
the life of a man full of sin.

As bright as the sun has ever shone,
the life of a Christian who does not roam.

As hard as stone could ever be,
the life of a man who does not see.

As clear as glass could ever appear,
the God of a Christian is always near.

As unsteady as a boat out to sea,
the mind of a sinner will always be.

As sure as the rain is to fall,
the thoughts of a man who heeds the call.

By: Natalie A. Thornhill

Dedicated to just about anyone who needs to know it.